

RAMBLING THROUGH DIXY.

The Cheapness of Clothing and Hardware in the South—Some Heavy Natives That We Saw.

Well this is Friday morning and our allotted time at this place will be up next Monday. There are several places yet, that we have not visited. The first place that attracts our attention is the cotton factory, and we can say it is a pleasure to see the spools and looms go and the girls tie the threads, but the noise is dreadful. To see the cotton cloth made by such an ingenious process it does look like it ought to be very cheap. While we stand and look at 162 looms, beating the threads into cloth, we could not help thinking of our mothers who used to lean against the old loom beam from early morning till late at night and probably measure off from 2 to 4 yards for a day's work. It was a good thing for us that they did not see this process or they would have gone out of business, and we would have had no shirts or pants. The woolen factory is much the same as the cotton in its operations therefore I will not dwell on that subject. 'Tis enough to say that they can make you a blanket for your bed before you could get on that repining institution if you had your boots off.

The next place we visit is the spoke and handle factory. The work in this establishment is all done by the aid of machinery as well as in the other places and makes nearly as much noise and throws the chips and dust all over one's good clothes. So we remained but a short time, but long enough to learn that our hardware men make a living profit when they sell us hammer and hatchet handles at from 8 to 10 cents apiece. They also have a stove and barrel factory here, and we do not wonder at the low price that we pay for flour and salt barrels. In fact it was surprising to the writer to see at what remarkably low prices these industries all sell their goods and still have a living, and a profit, for as I said before they all seem contented and prosperous. The blacksmith here only charges 75 cents for shoeing a horse all around, with new shoes.

The undertakers furnish a nice walnut coffin trimmed in good shape and complete for $10. Of course one can get them more expensive if they desire. Good white farm hands here at from $8 to $12 per month. Carpenters $1 to $2 a day and, as the Irishman said, "ate himself." But there is very little difference made when the employer "ates" you as they don't seem to think a man's board worth anything down here. Board and brandy comes almost free. The farmers raise every thing they need and of course the expense is small.

But there is one more place of interest that we will visit before returning to our boarding house, for it is high noon and we are tired and hungry. Some one tells us there is a curiosity on Second street that we must see. Now reader stop and hold your breath, for I'm about to tell you the biggest negro story that I have yet related during my rambles through Dixy. We called in at the number designated and to our great wonder beheld, sitting at the wash-tub at work an old black auntie who weighed over 400 lbs., and she said she had a sister that weighed 100 lbs. more than she, but as she was more than we could see at one look we departed for our boarding house without seeing the sister.

Saturday we spent in driving over the country and viewing the old time people living in their log cabins with the stick and dirt chimneys covered with clapboards or "shakes" as the New Englanders call them, and one corner of the door sawed off to admit pines in case it should be closed. We take a look at things around the yard and see two yellow dogs, a pet deer a blind horse and an old cow with horns pointing directly heavenward; we take a walk and as we return we notice several oak skins stretched just over the only window that the dwelling contains. These circumstances bring vividly to mind past recollections when a boy back in the mountains of the old Dominion state and we could not help but wish for our childhood days again.

To-morrow is Sunday, and we must go to church and see how these people serve God, before we take our departure.

Well, it is Sunday. I told you in a former letter there were five churches in this town, and to hear the bells all ringing at once it does seem as though they could be heard clear back in Kansas. It is a lovely morning, every one goes to church here, we can see whole families all ages and sizes starting for their house of worship. We went to the Christian church, and about one hundred of the young ladies from the college marched in, in regular soldier style, and made a splendid showing being dressed all alike. The text was "We see through a Glass Darkly" the subject I thought a good one, and it was handled well.

But to-morrow is Monday and our day to start for home, and we must be making some preparations. So we again see that our trunks are ready and every thing in its place, all our haversacks with lunch and we are ready to journey homeward. For the benefit of those that want to know something about the distances from place to place along this route, I will say that from Iola to Ft Scott is 40 miles, from Ft Scott to Memphis Tenn. it is 295, from Memphis to Nashville it is 438, and from Nashville to McMinnville it is 100 miles.

Believing that the readers of the REGISTER have Dixy enough, I close the subject with this letter. I am sincerely yours, T. F. KELLEY.

W. C. T. U.

[The following from Mrs. Ada M. Dittenbender, Secy. of Legislators and Petitioners in the W. C. T. U., to Union Signal, shows some lamentable facts connected with our boasted christian civilization.]

The United States Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, the 4th of January, granted a hearing to Mrs. J. P. Newman, American Supt. of the Legal Department of the World's W. C. T. U., to present the memorial praying, that "immediate and decisive steps be taken to aid in suppression of the alcoholic traffic in the Congo Free State and basin of the Niger." The committee was addressed by Bishop Newman in behalf of Mrs. Newman, and Prof. Hornaday. About fifty white and colored members were present. The memorial, neatly pasted on white cloth, bore the signature of several thousand citizens of the United States, mainly those of our leading professional men and women. It also bore the approval of a number of influential ecclesiastical bodies. Copies of the memorial, signed in Japan, China, India and Europe, by similar classes of citizens, and approved by ecclesiastical bodies, were also before the committee. Bishop Newman, in the course of his remarks said, "The wisest men of our nation, have anticipated intimate relations at some coming time between this country and Africa, and the probabilities are now, that these anticipations are to be realized. We are, therefore, nationally interested in the suppression of the liquor traffic there. It is a sad fact that as a nation, we stand third in the amount of intoxicants that are exported there."

Prof. Hornaday in his remarks said: "It is unnecessary to occupy time in adducing new proofs of the extent of the liquor traffic in Africa, or the wide spread and terrible results it has been producing there for years, and is producing now. If more proof is wanting, it can be piled mountain high. But no one denies the facts that have been set forth in print during the last two years, and on two occasions before this committee. This government has in its power to bring about the correction. To-day ten-thousand friends of the African savage, ask you in writing that that power be exercised. It is our place to take the lead in this matter. The United States government stands as the obstacle of a most wise, humane and philanthropic measure undertaken by Great Britain three years ago, in which our co-operation was asked; we stand to-day as the champion and protector of the trading wretches who sell dangerous fire-arms and ammunition and equally deadly spirits, in the islands of the western Pacific. We occupy before the other civilized nations, a position which is indefensible and humiliating to the last degree. I invite the attention of the committee to the facts which have produced the result. In 1884 the attention of the British government was drawn to the fact that the traffic in fire-arms and spirits in the islands of the western Pacific, was the cause of great harm to the natives of that region. With the weapons they murder each other by wholesale, and with the liquor they degrade themselves below the level of the brutes. The traffic was declared a disgrace to civilization. On one small island called Pleasant Island two hundred and fifty men, women and children were killed by fire-arms in four years' time. Lord Granville addressed a circular dispatch to the representatives of the British government in the United States, France, Italy, Germany, Austria and Russia, directing them to ascertain whether those various governments would be willing to enter into an international agreement for the prevention of the sale of arms, ammunition, dynamite and alcohol to the natives of the Pacific Islands. In the mean time Lord Granville's action was powerfully supported by the colonial office of the British government, and a mass of testimony was gathered on the subject. The proofs of the necessity for an international agreement were overwhelmingly convincing. In reply to the proposition of the British government, all the nations appealed to, declared their willingness to ratify an international agreement as proposed, and enforce it—all save one, the United States of America. In a dispatch dated April 11, 1885 our Secretary of State declared that while recognizing and highly approving the moral force and general propriety of the proposed regulations and the responsibility of conducting such traffic under proper and careful restrictions, the government of the United States does not feel entirely prepared to join in the international understanding proposed, and will, therefore, for the present, restrain its action to the employment, in the direction outlined by the suggested arrangement of a sound discretion in permitting traffic between its own citizens, and the natives of the Pacific Islands."

The effect of this decision was, that the British government was compelled to abandon its almost perfected scheme for a prohibitive international agreement. Thus the flagrant abuses caused by the traffic in arms and spirits with those ignorant savages are now being perpetuated by reason of our refusal to take part in an undertaking which the European powers generally supported and which certainly calls for the active sympathy of every friend of justice throughout the world. In view of these facts, is the position of the United States an enviable one? The liquor traffic in Africa can be stopped forever by such an agreement as Great Britain proposed in regard to the Pacific Islands. The friends of humanity, not only in this country, but all around the world, ask through this memorial that the Congress of the United States shall exercise its power toward the accomplishment of that result.

We have the honor to ask that this government invite the other great powers to join in devising and putting in active operation, measures for the suppression of the rum traffic in Africa in general, and, in the Congo Free State and Basin of the Niger in particular."

The St. Joseph Herald is published every day in the year. It is a wide-awake, progressive newspaper, printing all of the news of the day. While republican in politics its news columns are impartial and non-partisan. The weekly edition of The Herald is issued Thursday morning. Those who do not get the Sunday edition will find the Weekly the best compendium of Current Miscellany and the cheapest published anywhere. Every number contains sixty-four columns of the choicest matter, handsomely printed and richly illustrated, precisely as it does in the Sunday Edition. Among the special features are the sketches by the laid-headed humorist, Bill Nye, the Etelka fashion letters, stories, poems, and the news of the day. Price of the Weekly, one dollar a year, single copy 5 cents. The Daily Herald will be sent to any address, postage prepaid, every day in the year, for $7.00. Address The Herald, St. Joseph, Mo.

A GREAT OFFER.

The Kansas City Evening News, without doubt the brightest daily paper that reaches our office, is making great inducements to new subscribers. They offer to send it one year for two dollars. This is the cheapest daily published, but little more than half a cent a day.

The Evening News is not the oldest nor the largest paper in the west, and these facts we think are largely in its favor. It is young in years and for that reason is active, aggressive and fearless. It is small in dimensions, thus saving the publishers a great deal of expense for waste paper and the readers a great deal of the valuable time usually spent in plodding through the labored columns of the blanket sheets which are fast becoming obsolete. The thirty-two columns of the Evening News are completely filled with condensed news from which all the chaff and "clush" is carefully eliminated by experienced writers. As is already widely known the Evening News has laid the foundation of an aggressive policy without fear or favor so long as the public good is being served. We cheerfully recommend this paper to our readers. Send $2.00 at once to the publishers, corner Ninth and Delaware, Kansas City, Mo., or leave order with your postmaster.

SALEM.

By Salem correspondent. March 4, 1889, March 4, 1889. What great events are crowded between these dates. A nation grown from a very small beginning to be very great and powerful. Religious liberty for which our fathers came here has become an absolute fact; a nation where the people are the absolute sovereigns, grown from being able to put a few thousand men into the field, till now she can put over five millions. Telegraphs, telephones, railroads, the fastest and most powerful war ships in the world. Four millions of slaves set free; a nation where no titles are allowed, where the ruler returns to be ruled, where man is ruled so little that he hardly knows it, a nation where the humblest may aspire to the highest office; where the oppressed of all lands may come and be as free as the freest; a nation where man is absolutely free, and all in 100 years. Our fathers "budded better than they knew."

"My country 'tis of thee Sweet land of liberty Of thee I sing."

There is no age of the world we had rather have lived in than this.

Many a poor Woman suffers untold Tortures from Back-Ache.

If she only knew how easily she could get relief by using Bellard's Snow Liniment, she would bless the day she read these few lines. It is a grand remedy for headache and neuralgic pains. No pain can withstand its magic influence. It removes the fire from a burn or scald in one minute. It will cure inflammatory rheumatism and Sciatica; applied to the throat and chest in croup it will give immediate relief and make breathing much easier. No family can be without it if once they know its value. Sold by Scott & Son.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

1889. HARPERS BAZAR. ILLUSTRATED.

Harpers Bazar will continue to maintain its reputation as an unequalled family journal. Its art illustrations are of the highest order, its literature is of the finest kind, and its Fashion and Household Departments of the most practical and economical character. Its pattern-sheet appendices and fashion-plates alone will save the reader ten times the cost of subscription, and its articles on decorative art, social etiquette, home-decorating, cooking, etc., make it indispensable to every house-hold. Its bright short stories, and timely essays are among the best published; and not less is admitted to its columns that could offend the most fastidious taste. Among the attractions of the new volume will be serial stories by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Mrs. Alexander William Black, and Thomas Hardy, and a series of papers on nursery management by Mrs. Christine Terhune Herrick.
